This year, Chuck Liscum, Mike McCormack and Ray VanVoorhis will celebrate the 25th anniversary of the architectural design firm that bears their names. The professional partnership that led to a quarter-century of success began at Dutchess Community College, and so it is fitting that the trio was honored as the newest inductees into the DCC Alumni Hall of Fame.

Mike can trace his interest in architecture all the way back to grade school where he won an art award for structure drawings, while Chuck’s interest in art led him to first study at a college in New York City following his service in Vietnam. Ray began his college education in DCC’s Engineering program, but switched to Architecture, where he met Mike and also Chuck, who had since moved to the Hudson Valley and enrolled in DCC’s Architecture program.
Guy Du Quesnay, a former student in the communications program at DCC, won a bronze award in the 33rd Annual Telly Awards for his video of a rock band performance at a local venue.

“The Telly Awards has a mission to honor the very best in film and video,” said Linda Day, executive director of the Telly Awards. “Guy Du Quesnay’s accomplishment illustrates his creativity, skill and dedication to his craft and serves as a testament to great film and video production.”

The Telly Awards were founded in 1941 to honor outstanding cable TV commercials and programs, the finest video and film productions, and online commercials, video and films. A judging panel of more than 500 accomplished industry professionals, each a past winner of a Silver Telly and a member of The Silver Telly Council, judged the 11,000 entries from all 50 states and 45 countries. The Silver Council evaluated entries to recognize distinction in creative work – entries do not compete against each other — rather entries are judged against a high standard of merit.

Du Quesnay is a Poughkeepsie resident. He has studied video production at DCC under Camilo Rojas. While here he won the Learning in Progress Award for Excellence for the documentary “Final Decisions: Preparing for Death.”

On August 25, 465 students moved into Conklin Hall, marking an important milestone for them individually, and in the history of DCC. Six years in the planning, the on-campus, suite-style residence hall is the first at any community college in the region, although more than half the community colleges in the state now have — or are in the process of building — student housing.

Unlike most freshman and sophomore housing, Conklin Hall has large suite-style units (averaging 1,100 square feet) with assorted bedroom configurations, two bathrooms, kitchenette (with full-sized refrigerator, microwave and sink) and living room. It also features lounges on each floor, a multi-purpose atrium, fitness center, laundry facilities, cable television and wireless Internet service and other amenities.

The 136,000 square foot residence hall is owned and operated by the DCC Association, which secured tax-exempt bonds for the project with the assistance of the Dutchess County Industrial Development Agency; construction was financed by M&T Bank. Construction services were provided by: Kirchhoff Consigli Construction Management (project manager); Liscum McCormack Van Voorhis LLC (architect); The Chazen Companies (civil engineer); Erdman Anthony (electrical and mechanical engineer); and Johnson Controls (geothermal system).

All three recall the heavy workload in the curriculum, and Mike remembers many of the other students switching to a less demanding major, leaving fewer people in the Architecture program, but increasing the sense of accomplishment and bond with the remaining students, especially among himself, Chuck and Ray.

That friendship stayed strong throughout their continued education at the New York Institute of Technology on Long Island and their subsequent jobs at separate architectural firms. Chuck, Ray and Mike always had talked about starting a firm together, and in 1987 they founded Liscum McCormack VanVoorhis LLP.

The firm’s list of accomplishments is extensive. The company has designed buildings for local municipalities such as Dover, Mahopac, Highland, Patterson, Pine Plains, Pleasant Valley, Clinton Corners, Poughkeepsie and more. In addition, the company has done work for Hudson Valley healthcare providers including Saint Francis Hospital and Vassar Brothers Medical Center, and educational institutions including DCC, Marist College, the Culinary Institute of America, Orange Community College, Our Lady of Lourdes, Dutchess Day School and more.

Chuck, Mike and Ray have been at the heart of numerous other design projects, and with a dedicated staff – some of whom have been with the company for 20 years – Liscum McCormack VanVoorhis LLP is positioned to provide exceptional architectural design services for years to come.

In the spirit of looking forward while recognizing the past, one of the firm’s recent projects is a fitting tribute to the journey taken by our newest Alumni Hall of Fame inductees. Liscum McCormack VanVoorhis LLP is responsible for the design of DCC’s first residence hall.

The building not only enhances the campus environment, but also stands as a tangible reminder of what dedicated and hard-working DCC graduates can accomplish.
